me: Reeves liked the name of his character as it reminded him of star athletes like Johnny Unitas and Joe Montana.[4] He described his character as a "total control freak and the ocean beats him up and challenges him. After a while everything becomes a game... He becomes as amoral as any criminal. He loses the difference between right and wrong."[3] Swayze felt that Bodhi was a lot like him and that they both shared "that wild-man edge."[3]
Joshua: lol
Joshua: wut
Joshua: why are you reading about point break me: for knowledge purposes
